

The Ultimate Buyer's Guide to Marketing Operations Software

How to select the right planning, budgeting, and workflow capabilities to meet your specific needs

Choosing the Right Marketing Ops Solution

Performing an efficient evaluation of new technology can be daunting and is typically resource-intensive. Making the best decision for marketing operations software includes getting buy-in from other stakeholders such as finance and requires time to conduct research along with careful due diligence. That's why we've created this guide to ensure you have practical tools and tips such as a handy scorecard to help you evaluate software and make the best choice for your marketing team.

“To position marketing as a business driver and be proactive amid changing market conditions, marketers must incorporate stronger end-to-end planning and coordination. This starts with connecting financial planning to marketing performance.”

FORRESTER MARKETING RESOURCE MANAGEMENT WAVE™, 2022

In Deloitte's 2022 Global Marketing Trends Survey¹, following are three outcomes' executives hope to achieve:

Top three outcomes executives hope to achieve

To achieve these goals, first understand that not all marketing operations software is created equal and significant change management will be required to truly transform how you run the business of marketing. Consider these five factors when selecting the best solution:

Critical Factors	Questions to Ask
Purpose-built for marketers Marketers' need a system built for marketing, not the CFO. That's because marketing planning is fundamentally different from Enterprise Performance Management. The solution must bridge the gaps between marketing strategy, budgets, campaigns and performance. If not, marketers will just spend their time trying to connect the dots in spreadsheets, instead of marketing.	<ul style="list-style-type: none">• Does the system connect all marketing processes from planning to investing to executing to measuring performance?• Is the system able to support marketing taxonomies that cascade plans, budgets and work streams?• Does the solution enhance collaboration between teams or support content reviews with external agencies?

Able to meet the needs of complex enterprises

Organizations need a solution built to serve the enterprise; one that can scale to support a limitless number of marketing activities and transactions without impacting performance. The solution must support complex workflows tailored to unique enterprise requirements. It must support stringent measures to protect its systems and customer data. And it needs to offer a wide range of integrations with enterprise marketing and financial platforms.

- Can the platform seamlessly integrate with other systems and extend into the broader business technology ecosystem?
- What type of third-party validation is conducted?
- What's the vendor's data protection policy?
- How are users authenticated in the system?
- Is there single-sign-on and authentication that complies with enterprise security standards?

A true partnership

Marketing business acceleration software requires change management, which isn't easy. Having a vendor that understands best practices and can support you and your organization with the internal process changes required will help set your team up for success.

- Are best practices offered on a continuous basis?
- How does the vendor guide and challenge your team to improve their level of sophistication?
- Does the vendor have a maturity framework or model in place?
- How does the vendor support change management within your marketing organization?

Positive customer validation

Any vendor can claim their software will deliver results. The real proof is in their marketplace standing and longevity through its ability to continually evolve with customer needs. The right vendor can also demonstrate a track record of success with a range of enterprises across industries, backed by case studies, reviews, and testimonials from those whose words matter most: customers.

- Does the vendor offer case studies and testimonials to that prove real business benefits for customers?
- Are you able to speak to the vendor's customers directly?
- Are there product reviews available? If so, what are the themes including both the good and bad?
- What has been the outcome of industry analysts' evaluations?
- What other offerings, services or programs are offered to connect you with peers across the vendor's customer base?

A strong product vision

Having a solid product roadmap and vision that will meet the needs of marketers in the future is imperative. Check to see that the vendor has received top points for their product vision from industry analysts by downloading Forrester's 2022 Marketing Resource Management Wave™.

- How does the vendor see the world of marketing operations evolving?
- Are there different user experiences offered in the platform, such as for marketers or finance?
- How will the vendor's product roadmap support your journey?
- How did they score on product vision in Forrester's Marketing Resource Management Wave?

Key Capabilities Scorecard

Use the following scorecard for each vendor when evaluating a marketing operations suite or platform. Add up scores and look at which areas you have the highest ranking. Ultimately you want to choose a vendor with top scores in the areas you care the most about.

Score		Level of Importance	Prioritize by asking yourself...
4	Feature is highly developed	High	Is this requirement essential to my organization or objectives?
3	Feature is adequate	Medium	Is this requirement highly desirable, but not necessarily essential to my organization or objectives?
2	Feature is sub-optimal/poor	Low	Is this requirement optional, and not a barrier to the success of my organization or objectives if it is not met?
1	Feature is not available and is not on roadmap for at least 6 months	Not required	Is this feature simply a nice-to-have and will not drive any real value for my organization?

The right solution should be able to deliver these benefits:

High-growth brands and Uptempo customers such as AMD, Best Buy, Box, Cisco, Land O'Lakes, Mercedes-Benz, SAP Concur, and VMware are ahead of their peers, as they've spent significantly more time on data hygiene, connecting their marketing processes, and aligning their teams. This ensures they are well positioned to measure the true impact of their marketing efforts.

"What took us 850 hours in the last year is now much more automated. This year, we created the same market spend report, and it took us less than 50 hours to get the information ready and reviewed by our leadership team."
